There is nothing particularly new by the steamer Worner, which left Vickaburg on Tuesday. The robel forces in Grant's rear are represented to be rapidly secumulating, and some little apprehension is industed here lest Grant may be seriously interfered with.

Gen. Blair is up the Yazoo. Important news is expected from him.

Camo, Junet.—By the arrival of steamers we have reports from Vicksburg to Tuesday, June 2. We cannot learn that any important change has taken piace. The siege is still progressing. The probability is that two or three weeks will yet be consumed before the grand finale is reached.

There is no truth in the statement from Philadelphia, that Johnston is marching on Memphis. Passengers direct from there know nothing about it.

The Clara Poe was fired into by guerillas near Island 62. More than one hundred shots struck her. No one on board was hurt.

Gen. Ellet's brigade is at Memphis. So far as operating against guerillas is concerned it appears to be a failure.

A big effort is being made here in behalf of the wonded Illinois soldiers. Col. Dougherty, of Jonesboro, made a brilliant speech last night in the Presbyterian church.

SPRINGFIELD, June 6.—A Senate bill to preserve the purity of the ballot box and secure the independence of voters at elections in the State of Illinois, was read twice this snorring in the House, and referred. One clause in this bill prevents the marking or numbering of ballots at elections.

A bill to amend chapter 20 of the Revised Statutes, entitled "Criminal Jurisprudence," having for its object the application of the law to cover the counterfeiting of Treasury notes and postal currency, was introduced and ordered to a third reading. THE STATE OF THE S

FROM MURPREESBORO.

Our dispatches from Springfield develope a stapendous "gridiron" scheme for the benefit of what is termed the "Wabash Rallway Company," which was smuggled through the Senate at the last session, and which little Fuller and his fellow mercenaly in saying that the department is a great reglador, on which the Commanding General of the army of the Cumberland places the utmost reliance.

The system of inspection adopted is original with Col. Ducat, and for the first time here introduced. General Order No. 20, Just is sued, gives the details of organization, which, for every body's information and benefit, I should like bodily incorporated into this letter, but I know that the crowded state of the Tathuran columns will not permit the publication. A synoptical reference, however, will measurably answer all parposea.

The second paragraph of 'Orders' provides for the appointment of brigade and vision inspectors, who, through the corps impactors, are to report to the Inspector General, Paragraph third provides for command. Paragraph third provides for command Paragraph third provides for commander of each arm, article of clothing, equipment, and, in fact, every thing used in the army, on hand, condition, and required. Accompanying these reports advisory letters are forwarded, in which are sheef but complete statements of facts, and such recommendations as seem proper to the Inspector. Great importance is stateched to these letters of advice, and it is especially charged that they shall not be more formalities. Every thing connected with the army, the behavior and character of officers, the conduct of the different departments—Commissary, Quarter master and Medical—come within the grasp of the Inspector, and are reported upon. Thus, even the condition of a company, with reference to equipment, drift, and the efficiency of the different departments—commissary, Quarter master and Medical—come within the grasp of the Inspector, and are reported upon the condition of a company, with reference to equipment, drift, and the efficiency of the different departments—commissary, guarter for the condition of a company, with reference to equipment, drift, and the efficiency of the lineaceus of disciplines are to be reported promptly, accompanned by recommendations from are holding and closely watching the country to our left, and close up to the Cumberland River. There are no indications, however, that the occupation is for any other purpose, than to watch the Cumberland crossings. The continued successes of Grant, in my opinion, put rebel raids into Kentucky out of the question, and the day certainly exame to very far removed, when these rebel maranders will be pushing from the Cumberland to the crossings of the Tennessee.

Lieut. Col. Swanwick of the 29d, and Col. Alexander of the 21st Illinois regiments, who were taken prisoners at the battle of Stone River, arrived "home" Saturday, loudly wel-comed by their compades in arms. Brave men

The return of Napoleon from Elba was the signal for a general reaction in France. Thousands focked to him on the instant. Nothing could keep the Little Corporal, bars nor iron, nor prison nor bland. It is true that they were always distinguished for politeness, and the outside shows of referement and good breeding; jealous of what they called their honor, ready at a moment's notice to blow a friend's brains out, or do any other similar kindly office for him, if they fancied they had any reason to suspect his fidelities; but at the bottom of them—and necessarily so from the fact of their position as nigger pediars and whippers of niggers—as believers in the chattel-life of the nigger—in the right of the aristocratic holder of the chattel to commit any atrocities against it—bind it, brand it, burn it,

Their treatment of our wounded soldiers, of prisoners of war, of contrabands relaken after flight, their horrible threats of murder against colored troops, and their white officers who may be taken in battleall go to prove what an infernal substratum has been lying below the outside and pretended refinements of the chivalry, all this time, requiring but the touch of the spark to blow it into maligmant flame. This is their way of showing what kind of a thing the Southern gentility is, and we gladly confess that it is a peculiar attribute, and that the mudaills of the North interpret the word with a very different meaning, and understanding.

Fairly regarded, we are not at all sure that the mudaill interpretation is not the best,

A wounded mudsill is too much of a gentleman to shoot a live rebel after he canteen, and would be quite as likely as Sidney to give a rebel the last drop of water he possessed, even though he were dying for it himself. Here was a fine chance for the chivalry to show their gentichood. The prisoners were harmless men of letters, wandering historians, doing at the risk of their lives a good turn to the veracity of history by their vivid descriptions of the scenery and the scener ents of war-a class of persons aleven by barbarians, in the most bar-

But the Southern Chivalry had no respect for the persons and qualifications which these barbarians held in such high esteem. The New York correspondents, finding their position rather uncomfortable and dull in the Atlanta prison, sent their cards to the more liberal newspaper offices, soliciting the favor of a sight of some Northern or Southern journal; whereupon the Atlanta Confederacy, which was not one of the papers honored by the solicitation of the same division, had made a loagement and planted a flag upon another fort. During that time fully 5,000 shots were fired, solid shot and shell. The damage occasioned by this persistent attack must have been immense. Since that time all has been quiet, with the exception of shot directed at intervals against the fortifications.

THIBTEENTH DAY IN THE REAR A Rebel Bearer of Dispatches comes into our Lines-His Story-List of Federal Prisoners Paroled by Pemberton at Vicksburg.

IN THE READ OF YEASHURO, May 31, 1863.
The rumor to which I referred in my letter of yesterday, is, to-day, said to be unfounded. A sutler from the 68th Ohio reports that Gen. Legget's brigade, of Logan's division, had en-Legget's brigade, of Logan's division, had en-countered the enemy at one of the crossings of Big Black River, and had been overpow-ered and compelled to fall back with consider-able loss. This rumor, like the one of the previous day, I have not had time to verify at able loss. This rumor, like the one of the previous day, I have not had time to verify at headquarters, and give it as I have received it.

I have been considerably interested in the story of Greene S. Doughass, so of J. G.
Douglass, of Mason county, III., who came into our lines Thursday morning last, bearing a message from Lieut. Gen. Pemberton to Gen. Johnston, at Jackson, Miss. Young Douglass left his home in Hillinois, seven years ago, and went to San Antonio, Texas, where he calisted in the United States service as "Ranger," under Capt. Hayes, who was attached to Col. Canby's command. He was in this service at the breaking out of the rebellion, assigned to special duty on the frontier at Fort Lamar, a small fort on the head waters of the Brason Silver. Canby's contiere command, consisting of three hundred and sixty "rangers," Douglass among the number, was espitured by Earl Van Dorn. Capt. Hayes subsequared while the command was on its way to Brownsville, to seek transportation to the United States. The regulars were paroled and sent home, but the "rangers," being considered irregular troops, and supposed to considered irr aist mainly of Texans, were offered the altermative of joining the rebel service or—hanging. At the expiration of the twentyfour hours given them for consideration, one hundred and fifty joined a cavalry regiment, known as Green's 2d Texas cavalry, and were assigned to Sibley's brigade, then operating in the territory of Arizons.

They left San Antonio and marched to Arizona. A battle was fought at Valverde, on the east bank of the river Rio Grande, in which they were defeated. Afterwards they which they were defeated. Afterwards they retreated to Gloriada, forty miles from Rio Grande, on the plains at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains, where they hazarded another engagement, and were again defeated and forced to fall back with the loss of baggage trains and artillery and seven hundred men. Here young Douglass was wounded. The rebel army retreated to Albuquerque, skirmished a little, and then fell back upon San Douglass was in the battle of Coffeeville, and stood not ten feet from where Col. Mc-Cullough, of the 4th Illinois cavalry, was murdered. The appropriation bills came up and were both referred to the Committee on Finance, with directions to consolidate the two in one. These bills, so far as the Executive and Adjutant General's Departments are concerned, cut down the amounts of the last two years nearly one-half, on many items. The Adjutant General's office and Executive Department have heretofore been paid out of the 20,000, the halsness of which had been expended in the relief of soldiers and for other necessary expenses. It now costs $10,000 per annum to run the Adjutant General's office. The bill appropriates $3,000 per annum. I do not think there is any intention, at present, among the Democracy, to favor any political measures. They appear to have had enough of that during the first part of the seysion. There is much apathy among them as regards national politics, and, indeed, alring generally, so much so that a certain degree of bit terness pervades the House as regards legislation of all kinds. In short, business affairs to-day, had to be in that condition that a motion to adjourn would be most acceptable to the majority.

Some Democrats talk about an adjournment on the 10th, while some patit off to the 14th. For my part I should not be surprised to see the seasion brought suddenly to a close at any moment. D. H. Eurry. lat Lieut and Adj't. GEN. CARR'S REPORT. Near Vicksburg, May 25th, 1853. HEADQUARTERS 1478 DAVISION.

Near Vicksburg, May 265h, 1878.
GENERAL:—I desire to record my testimony to the gailant conduct of Boomer's Brigade of your Division on the 254 inst., in the attack on the defence of Vicksburg.

The only chance to secure the lodgement made by my Division on the enemy's works, was, evidently to send reinforcements to them; and though it entailed the loss of brave men I felt that the importance of the object made it absolutely necessary to try.

Col. Boomer formed his Brigade in two lines—placed hisself in the center, and marched them forward in the most gallant style. The enemy had been heavily reinforced, and the Brigade was met with a tremendons storm of bullets, but not a man finched. They moved forward steadily down the hill, scrambfed across the first ravine, and were just formed to advance to the next when Boomer was struck down.

Col. Putnam was about to continue the advance when he learned that the last words of Boomer were not to stiempt to charge those works.

I was glad that no farther advance was GRAVES & IRVINE.

Boomer were not to attempt to charge those works.

I was glad that no farther advance was made, for it proved that the enemy had had time to concentrate so strongly in front that it was impossible to take his works.

When ordered to retire the Brigade moved back steadily, took up its assigned position and heid it until ordered away.

Besides being a gallant and noble soldier, Col. Boomer was a personal friend of mine, and I keenly feel his loss, but he died at the head of his command nobly performing his Trimming Ribbens, Quilted Lawns, head of his command nobly performing his duly to his country and to his cause. Very Respectfully, Your Obedient Servant, (Signed.) E. A. Cann, Brig. Geul. Fluted Braids, Hosiery,

He congratulated also the delegate from England that had been present at these meetings in the far West, and through him he desired to say how much he esteemed England, and the nable woman who was so well known and loved all over the world, as the Queen of Great Britain. Hond cheers, I and whilst speaking of the Queen abroad, he could not do better than to allude to the Queen sh none—the beautiful women who were assembled at that beard in homor of the Convention, and of the cause of the Convention and of the cause the content of the convention, and of the cause the convention and reversed, and he was sure that those representatives of woman now present amongst them would receive the homage of all who were present. For the most part purchases have been made with a view to the erection of buildings, to secure a permanent income, or a

Gentlemen of ve-racity and good judgment, who own property in Cincinnati and Chicago, assure us that first class residence property that sells in Cincin-nati for from one hundred and fifty to two-hundred and sixty dollars per foot, lots which have been sold for that sum the last month situated relatives in Chicago, would month, situated relatively in Chicago, would bring no more than from sixty to eighty dollars per foot. Sales have been made here at these atter prices, of lots worth more intrinsically, latter prices, of lots worth more intrinsically, in their judgment, than a lot that sold in Clncinnati the other day at auction for $260 per foot. The truth is the erash of 1857, and the sudden loss at a later period of four or five millions of dollars by the breaking up of our banks from the depreciation of Southern stocks, put the price of real estate very far below its real worth; and this fact has in-

From the extent, variety and quality of his stock, we should say that J. H. Williamson's establishment, No. 87 Raudolph sirrect, (a few doors east from the Matteson House,) is the place to buy everything in the way of middles, harness, bridles, collars, whips, breakes, dec., dec., as well as furnishing goods for manufacturers of these articles. Besides having one of the largest retail establishments in the city, Mr. W. is doing a heavy jobbing trade. He has recently received an extra fine lot of equipments for "first horses," which those interested should examine.

below its real worth; and this fact has induced many persons from other cities to make investments here, while the citizens generally have falled to realize the full value of their own property. There is no reason why real estate in Chicago should not be worth more in a few years than in any city west of New York. In almost every instance of recent sales real estate in Chicago was probably richly worth in gold the price it brought in paper.

It is not for the interest of the city that property should sell af fancy prices, but those citizens who buy places for business or homes at modernic rates, and before inflation takes place here will secure profits which persons from abroad seek in the purchases they are making.
